

Homework Policy

1 Introduction

- 1.1 Homework is anything children do outside the normal school day that contributes to their learning, in response to guidance from the school. Homework encompasses a whole variety of activities instigated by teachers and parents to support the children's learning. For example, parents who spend time reading stories to their children before bedtime are helping with homework.

2 Rationale for homework

- 2.1 Homework is a very important part of a child's education, and can add much to a child's development. We recognise that the educational experience that school itself can provide is limited by the time and resources available; children can therefore benefit greatly from the complementary learning that they do at home. Indeed, we see homework as an important example of cooperation between teachers and parents. One of the aims of our teaching is for children to develop as independent learners, and we believe that doing homework is one of the main ways in which children can acquire the skill of independent learning.
- 2.2 Homework plays a positive role in raising a child's level of attainment. However, we also acknowledge the important role of play and free time in a child's growth and development. While homework is important, it should not prevent children from taking part in the activities of various out-of-school clubs and of other organisations that play an important part in the lives of our pupils. We are well aware that children spend more time at home than at school, and we believe that they develop their interests and skills to the full only when parents encourage them to make maximum use of the opportunities available outside school.

3 Aims and objectives

- 3.1 The aims and objectives of homework are:
- to enable pupils to make maximum progress in their academic and social development;
 - to help pupils develop the skills of an independent learner;
 - to promote cooperation between home and school in supporting each child's learning;
 - to enable all aspects of the curriculum to be covered in sufficient depth;
 - to provide educational experiences not possible in school;
 - to consolidate and reinforce the learning done in school, and to allow children to practice skills taught in lessons;
 - to help children develop good work habits for the future.

4 Types of homework

- 4.1 Staff and pupils regard homework as an integral part of the curriculum – it is planned and prepared alongside all other programmes of learning.

EYFS Expectation:

Each pupil will receive a homework for reading, writing/grammar, spelling/phonics and maths each week, homework amount will be reasonable and of the teachers discretion. Children in EYFS will complete their homework in their Homework Book.

KS1 Expectation:

Each pupil will receive a minimum of 4 pieces of homework per week, Spelling/ Phonics practice, Tables / Number bonds practice, 1 piece of English work (linked to their class work)/ Reading and 1 piece of mathematics work, also linked to their class work. Children in KS1 will complete their homework on whatever format the teacher deems suitable and filed away in class for evidence.

KS2 Expectation:

Each pupil will receive a minimum of 4 pieces of homework per week, Spelling/ Phonics practice, Tables/ Number bonds practice, 1 piece of English work (linked to their class work)/ Reading and 1 piece of mathematics work, also linked to their class work. Children in KS2 will complete their homework on books provided by school and using equipment provided by school.

- 4.2 We set a variety of homework activities. In the Foundation Stage, Key Stage 1 and Key Stage 2, we give children books to take home and read and/or discuss with their parents. We give guidance to parents on achieving the maximum benefit from this time spent reading with their child. In KS1 we also children to complete weekly English and Maths tasks. Sometimes, we ask children to talk about a topic at home prior to studying it in school. For example, in the history topic on toys, we ask children to find out what toys were popular when their grandparents were young, and, if possible, to bring examples into school to show the other children. Sometimes, we ask children to find and collect things that we then use in science lessons, and occasionally we ask children to take home work that they have started in school, when we believe that they could benefit from spending further time on it. When we ask children to study a topic, or to research a particular subject, we encourage them to use not only the school library but also the local library, as well as the Internet.
- 4.3 At Key Stage 2, we continue to give children the sort of homework activities outlined in paragraph 4.2, but we expect them to do more tasks independently. We set English and Maths homework routinely each week (as well as spellings and times tables practise), and we expect the children to consolidate and reinforce the learning done in school through practice at home. This is supported by the homework books. We also set homework as a means of helping the children to revise for tests, as well as to ensure that prior learning has been understood.
- 4.4 Homework is marked according to the school marking policy. Homework completed well is acknowledged and praised. There may be issues arising from the homework, which the teacher will follow up in lesson time.
- 4.5 We recognise that children have individual learning styles, which means that some tasks can be completed in a number of different ways, while others demand a particular approach.
- 5.6 We give all our pupils a homework book. Weekly homework should be completed and returned to school on the day requested by the teacher. All children from YR to Y6 are also given a planner, this is to be signed by parents each night after their child has read and returned to school the following day.

6 Inclusion and homework

- 6.1 We set homework for all children as a normal part of school life; to solidify this all pupils sign a homework contract. . Each pupil will receive a homework book to work upon for that academic year. We ensure that all tasks set are appropriate to the ability of the child, and we endeavour to adapt any task set so that all children can contribute in a positive way. As an additional support a weekly homework club is offered to all children who are struggling to complete their homework. If homework is not completed on time, pupils will be asked to complete their homework during school hours. We value and celebrate the cultural diversity of our pupils and their families, and we appreciate the enrichment that this brings.

7 The role of parents

- 7.1 Parents have a vital role to play in their child's education, and homework is an important part of this process. We ask parents to encourage their child to complete the homework tasks that are set. We invite them to help their children as and when they feel it to be necessary, and to provide them with the sort of environment that allows children to do their best. Parents can support their child by providing a good working space at home, by enabling their child to visit the library regularly, and by discussing the work that their child is doing.

- 7.2 If parents have any questions about homework, they should, in the first instance, contact the child's class teacher. If their questions are of a more general nature, they should contact the head teacher. Finally, if they wish to make a complaint about the school homework policy, or the way in which it is implemented, parents should contact the governing body.

8 Use of ICT

- 8.1 The use of ICT and the Internet has made a significant contribution to the amount of reference material available at home, and the ease and speed with which it can be accessed. However, our teachers expect their pupils to produce their own work, perhaps by editing something they have found, or by expressing it in their own words. The children are not achieving anything worthwhile by merely downloading and printing out something that has been written by somebody else.
- 8.2 There are many websites containing highly educational material which can have a powerful effect on children's learning. Parents are advised always to supervise their child's access to the Internet.

9 Monitoring and review

- 9.1 It is the responsibility of our governing body to agree and then monitor the school homework policy. This is done by the committee of the governing body that deals with curriculum issues. Parents complete a questionnaire each year, and during the school's Ofsted inspection, and our governing body pays careful consideration to any concern that is raised by any parent. Our governing body may, at any time, request from our head teacher a report on the way in which homework is organised in our school.
- 9.2 This policy will be reviewed in two years, or earlier if necessary.
